

TOGETHER WE WORSHIP

AUGUST UPDATE

4.2 million goal

A recent move from our family home of seventeen years has been eye-opening! Old family photos brought back sweet memories, and unwanted stuff meant one more trip to TFAC or Goodwill. Maybe some of the lessons I'm learning in our house move can be food for thought in the transition to our church worship location on the Fourth Floor:

1. Change stretches our mental muscle. We are forced to look at old things in a new way, and not only appreciate the past but embrace the promise ahead. To what are you most looking forward in our church?

2. The move will cost each of us something. We are equally called to be good financial stewards of the church we call home. Have you made your Together We Worship pledge commitment yet?

3. Anticipation brings fresh joy and opportunity to try new things. We'll need many volunteer greeters, camera operators, and nursery workers. Will you take a shift with a cheerful and willing heart? Who knows what special work God will do, as we worship together in a new place for this season?

Can't Wait Until August 11,
